Did you have an average day?	YES
So, simply average?	YES
so then I went with the animals I knew are at the park...
Did you see any koalas?	NO

wombats?	NO
I could see the sly grin on his face so knew we were up for some "major crazy talk" and off we went...
Did you see a giraffe?	YES
Elephant?	YES
Rhinos?	YES
Have the rhinos moved into the wombat enclosure?	YES and on it went... Mac was giggling and toe tapping with gusto. The sillier the better. The upshot, I have no idea what went on really - but I'm sure I am not the only parent who doesn't get any useful information from their kids.

An average day at the animal park. Not good, not bad. Not terrible, not fantastic simply average.

I particularly liked the giraffes, the polar bears, the camel and elephant.

I loved that the rhinos had moved into the wombat house and there were no more wombats.

The boat ride to see the killer whales was quite interesting.

I was glad to see boa constrictors instead of corn snakes and funnel web spiders instead of stick insects.

I told mum and dad about the new animal - a cross between a pelican and platypus. It lives above the sea and is called a Pelipus.

It seems the crocodiles and goats are now a nice stew and the peacock has flown away.

There were no wallabies, kangaroos or koalas at the animal park. No tigers, lions or sharks were around today either.

The thing that made it just an average day was my nose was very very cold. But, the rest of me was OK - Mum said I need to get a tougher nose.
